MANTY Winter Wonderland 2016

From the Rabbi

Beth D. Davidson

By the time you are reading this column, it will be a month since the historic agreement in Israel regarding pluralistic worship at the Kotel—the Western Wall. As many of you know, the site venerated by Jews for millennia has been segregated by gender: men on one side of a mechitza, and women on the other.

Anyone who has been fortunate enough to visit Israel has, I am sure, stood at the Wall, and perhaps placed a prayer in one of the cracks. You may well have heard a formal worship service on the men's side, but nothing communal on the women's side. The struggle for women's prayer, and subsequently egalitarian prayer, has taken decades.

This fight began in December, 1988, when 70 women who had been attending the International Jewish Feminist Conference wanted to pray together in community. They went to The Wall, with a Torah

Scroll, and prayed together on the women's side.

These women then became the core of "Women of the Wall," a group dedicated to supporting women's worship in this holy place.

Due to the fact that control of the Wall is in the hands of an ultra-orthodox group, Women of the Wall were refused permission to worship together; numerous laws were passed in the Knesset, until finally, in April 2003, the Israeli Supreme Court ruled in favor of a government ban which prohibited women from reading Torah or wearing tallit or tefillin at the main public area at the Wall.

Since then, there have been well-publicized instances of women being arrested for wearing tallitot and carrying a Torah, as well as men being arrested for physical violence against women worshippers, and vandalism against the women's side.

The 2003 Supreme Court ruling required the Government to find an alternate site for women who wished to worship, and plans to provide a small prayer site at Robinson's Arch, an archeological site around the corner from the traditional Kotel site, were suggested.

The Robinson's Arch area was inaugurated as prayer site in 2004; since then, Women of the Wall, B'not Mitzvah celebrations, and Conservative and Reform mixed gender groups have used the Robinson's Arch site.

Because this site isn't really part of THE WALL, some members of Women of the Wall have continued to break the law by attempting to worship in the women's section, with tallitot, Torah scrolls, and formal services.

By 2013, their arrests, as well as significant pressure from Jews living in the Diaspora, led the Israeli Government to require a legal solution. This is the background to the recent agreement.

So the dramatic announcement over pluralistic worship being achieved at the Kotel is, I believe, actually a misnomer. True, an agreement was reached with the Reform and Conservative movements and Women of the Wall, but what it does is to re-designate and upgrade the Robinson's Arch area for egalitarian prayer services (men & women together) and women's minyanim.

As Rabbi Uri Regev, Director of Hiddush—an Israeli organization dedicated to achieving religious liberty and equality—wrote in a recent column, which discussed both pros and cons of this new agreement, for some “...[t]he agreement represents a betrayal of the original values and mission of the Women of the Wall, as well as to other Modern Orthodox women who are interested in dignified prayer options in the women's section of the traditional Kotel plaza.

The agreement explicitly strengthens the ultra-Orthodox control of the prayer area at the ‘traditional’ section of the Kotel, and therefore creates greater obstacles for the women who wish to stay in that area....”

It would be sad, and ironic indeed, if this agreement, which in theory came about to provide freedom to worship for women, actually ends up restricting them even further.

So the question with which I am left is: does the Liberal world accept this deal,

Game Night Draws a Double Minyan

On Saturday evening, March 5, two dozen members of the TAY family gathered in the social hall for the first "Havdalah and Game Night Experience." A great time was had by all, although Rabbi Davidson was soundly beaten in dominos by the superior skills of Alix Ratnoff. Look for the next evening to be scheduled over the summer.

abandoning our hopes for true equality at the Wall, or do we say “Thank you but no thanks, we will not agree to sit at the back of the bus”—that is, accepting Robinson's Arch and not the actual Wall wall.

Do we take what we can get?
Do we celebrate, as the Reform and Conservative Movements are doing?
Do we end all efforts for actual access to the Kotel, and do we accept this as sufficient progress?

I don't have an answer, but if you are interested in learning more, please consider going to the websites of Women of the Wall, and Hiddush, as well as ARZA and the World Union for Progressive Judaism. You will find all sides of the argument represented, and can decide for yourself where you will stand...

Winter Wonderland Thanks from MANTY

by Adam Klein

MANTY had a wonderful time planning and running this year's Winter Wonderland. MANTY did a tremendous job. I was proud—as everyone at Temple Adath Yeshurun should be proud—of how our students handled themselves and represented our great community with the highest honor.

We want to thank all the families and members of MANTY and TAY who volunteered for the weekend. Without your efforts, this event would not have been as successful.

Thank you again and MANTY is looking forward with excitement to all of our events for the remainder of the year.

Capital Campaign UPDATE

PRESIDENT'S Message

Alan D. Kaplan

Again, I would like to express my gratitude to all those members of the congregation who have participated thus far in our three-year capital campaign. (We are now in the middle year of the campaign.)

Your generosity will not only revitalize and preserve our physical structure but provide an opportunity for current members and generations of Jews to come to learn and appreciate the teachings of our Torah

As a part of our foyer renovation plan, the memorial plaques will move to the south wall of the sanctuary where the memories they invoke can be part of our worship service.

In their prior location in the foyer a large plaque in the form of a partially unrolled Torah scroll will acknowledge all the members of our congregation who have contributed currently and throughout our remaining two years of the capital campaign.

The estimate for both the renovation cost and planned infrastructure upgrades is $500,000. To date with the participation of approximately one third of the congregation, we have received contributions ranging from $18 to $120,000, totaling $376,928.

Thank you to those who have already participated. If you have not contributed or pledged—or wish to increase your pledge—please consider doing so this year. It's easy to spread a pledge over the two remaining years of the campaign, if that better fits your budget.

On the next page, you can see the categories of giving, and the list of donors to date. If you have any questions about the capital campaign, contact the temple, or call me at 627-8787.

Joke for March

Selected by Ted Yegerman

A Hardware Store with Service

Kimmel went into a hardware store and asked if they sold rat poison.

"Sure!" said the clerk. "Shall I wrap it for you?"

"No!" was Kimmel's quick retort. "I'll send the rats down here so you can feed it to them personally!"

MAZEL TOV!

Congratulations to Fran and Steve Short on the birth of their first grandchild Eva Genevieve Shattuck. Proud parents are the Shorts' daughter Sarah, and her husband Jeff Shattuck, of Malden, MA. Her naming will be at TAY Shabbat service on Saturday March 19, at 12 noon.

On April 2, Justin Silver will be called to the Torah. Congratulations to proud father Robert Silver and his family, of Bedford. Justin is also the son of the late Hillary Silver.

Mazel tov to Marty and Judy Wolff on the occasion of their granddaughter Caroline Wolff being called to the Torah on March 5, 2016. Caroline lives in Brookline, MA, with her parents Jonathan and Sarah Wolff.

Congrats to Judith Jolton, who has been recognized by WZID as one of 20 Outstanding Women for 2016. She was acknowledged on March 12 at the Women's Expo at the Radisson Hotel in downtown Manchester.

Sisterhood Book Discussion: Dora Bruder by Modiano

Everyone is welcome to the Sisterhood-sponsored book discussion at TAY on Tuesday night, April 12, at 7 PM.

The book selected for discussion is Patrick Modiano's Dora Bruder, by the 2014 winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature, available in a 2015 paperback translation from the original French.

This book is brief, filled with mystery, and driven by occupation France's complicity in the deportation and death of Jewish French citizens.

The missing person announcement from Paris-Soir, December 31, 1941, "fifteen year old Dora Bruder is missing" inspires Modiano's 1997 book.

Who was she, this Jewish teenager in Nazi-occupied Paris?

How does Modiano's quest honor the Jews whose lives and stories Nazis and French collaborators erased?

In Modiano's mystery, the author remembers—in photographs, letters, news reports, and maps—a time that France wished to forget.

Join the discussion, which will be led by Dr. Nona Fienberg, Professor Emerita at Keene State College.

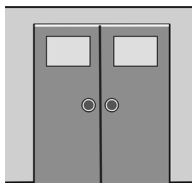

Nona Fienberg was Chair of the Holocaust and Genocide Studies Department, and longtime member of the Advisory Council of The Cohen Center for Holocaust and Genocide Studies.

TAY Security Reminder

Please remember that as part of our plan to increase security in the building, the front doors will be locked 15 minutes after the start of any service or class that is held when the office is not open.

We understand this may sometimes be an inconvenience. When the office is closed, we don't have anyone working the buzzer to screen visitors.

Thanks for helping us make TAY a safer place.

Thank you to the following people for leading services and Torah Study while Rabbi Beth was on sabbatical: Jonathan Baron, Alan Kaplan, Jonathan Pollack, Ryan Rosenberg, Mary Singer.

Thank you to Brenda Schadick for helping in the office.

Thank you to Bob Katchen for doing endless repairs on our building.

Look in the APRIL BULLETIN for forms, and info on making donations to our various FUNDS.

The next book will be Like Dreamers: The Story of the Israeli Paratroopers Who Reunited Jerusalem and Divided a Nation, by Yossi Klein Halevi.

You can purchase your copy of this award-winning book at the TAY office.
